VOTING VERY LIGHT IN CITY

Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

HUEY P. LONG gave Louisiana State University students $7 apiece last week-end to enable them to attend the Vanderbilt football game at Nashville, Tenn.—and today we learn that the modern sponsor of the "Share the Wealth" idea really expects the students to repay him. If the Kingfish made himself popular with the students, in the first instance, I rather imagine he has put himself in solid with the old folks, in the second instance. Borrowing money is an experience—but paying it back is a liberal education.

China, Perpetually Faced by Famine, No Cotton Threat

Poor Transportation and Food Requirements Limit Staple Acreage

AVERAGE IS 1/2 ACRE

Japan Inspires More Chinese Cotton—But Success Is Indifferent

By the Extension Service
Cotton acreage reduction campaigns in the South in 1905, 1915, 1921, and 1927 were acclaimed as life-savers to the South, but except for the 1905 campaign they were not very successful.

The present Agricultural Adjustment Administration program has effectively curbed production, removed a huge price-smashing surplus, upped cotton prices, and started farm and business recovery. There are some, however, who question these gains because of the fear of surrendering cotton markets to foreigners.

This series based on figures of the Cotton Section, Agricultural Adjustment Administration, has shown reported decreases in 1924 cotton acreage in India, Egypt, and Russia. The difficulties in future big expansion of cotton acreage in these countries have been mentioned. In the present article the Chinese situation is examined.

Pressure of Population
The pressure of population on food supply is so great in China that increases in cotton acreage will probably come very slowly. Famine is a danger never very far distant from the Chinese people. Transportation is very poor, and this limits the importation of food into the interior where cotton might be grown. This also makes it hard to market cotton. Many acres are entirely shut off from the outside food supplies and must grow all their own feed.

China had 5 million acres in cotton last year, and this increased an estimated 5 to 10 per cent this year. The estimated increased crop this year is 7 per cent over last year. Average yields of cotton are high, being 200 pounds per acre over a period of years.

The Japanese are a strong influence in China. They are attempting to develop the country, and this, of course, tends to increase cotton production. The average size of cultivated tract per Chinese farmer in Kuangsi Province, which is a leading cotton section is 3.7 acres. The average size of cotton patch per farm is slightly less than one-half acre per farm. Modern gains are unknown in most sections. This means that ginning must be done by hand, but there is no lack of labor for this work.

China Small Threat
If cotton prices should get so high in China that they are out of line with food prices, there would probably be a tendency to increase cotton acreage in certain parts of the country. The chances, however, are that cotton acreage will continue to grow very slowly. At present, China offers little threat to the American cotton grower.

No one would deny that foreign competition in cotton growing is a constant threat to the South and always has been. That such competition will rapidly take away America's markets is another matter. Sensible American production to assure a decent American price will not throw away foreign markets. Adjustment, which is the cornerstone of the AAA cotton program, does not allow mean reduction.

$5,817 Paid for Nevada Livestock

All But 17 U. S. Cattle Checks Are Received at Prescott

Nevada County Agent J. L. Hiler says the checks for the sale of drought cattle at his office in Prescott, excepting the 17 which the Kansas City office returned for correction.

This cattle buying, though not of sufficient volume to relieve the acute feed shortage situation in Nevada county, brought to the farmers of the county $5,817 for 446 head of cattle.

ARKANSAN IS SLAIN

Shot to Death, and Father Wounded, in Election Dispute

HOLLAND, Mo.—(AP)—Two men were shot fatally, two critically wounded, and several negroes were beaten in election disorders near here Tuesday.

The dead were:

Horace Farrell, and an unidentified negro.

The wounded: John E. Farrell, father of the dead man, and Clarence Posey, well known white farmer.

The Farrells and Posey were said to have been fired on as they were bringing the negroes to vote. Posey was taken to a Blytheville (Ark.) hospital.

The disorders climaxed a series of anti-negro demonstrations following the slaying several weeks ago of Dave Martin, war veteran.

By the Associated Press
Ideal weather beckoned millions of American voters to a test of the New Deal Tuesday after a momentous campaign which was battle-scarred at the eleventh hour by the mass shooting of wardens in a Pennsylvania mining hamlet.

An ambush at Kelayres, Pa., which killed three persons and wounded 21 others including three women, emphasized the tenseness prevailing in several areas across the nation as voters balloted for 466 members of congress, 33 governors and a mass of other positions.

(Kelayres is near Wilkes-Barre, Pa., in Luzerne county, anthracite coal-mining district which usually votes Progressive Republican or Democratic. As a rule the Democrats carry the congress seat, and nationally the county went for Al Smith in 1928 and for Roosevelt in 1932.)

Contending factions also gave warning of possible disturbances in New York, California and Delaware.

One in Arkansas
The killing of one man in Arkansas, just south of Steele, Mo., was reported as the first Arkansas disturbance. Reports said another was wounded in an election dispute.

HAZLETON, Pa.—The echo of gun fire that swept democratic parades Monday night, killing three and wounding 15, rang in the ears of Kelayres voters as, tense and fearful of further violence, they balloted Tuesday.

The Republican leader of the little mountain village five miles south of here is held with 13 others as state and federal authorities start an investigation of what Governor Pinchot described Tuesday as "an unspeakable outrage."

Cries of "kill them!" came from the throats of citizens who surged about state police as the Republican leader, Joseph Bruno, and members of his family were arrested. Threats of dynamiting the Bruno home were muttered.

There are many heated contests over the county, with James A. Farley, Democratic national chairman, appealing for support of the president and the New Deal; and the Republicans, through Chairman Henry P. Fletcher, forecasting the recapture of seats in congress and the control of several states.

In Arkansas chief interest is held by three proposed constitutional amendments and two referred acts, with more than 20 initiated county salary acts. State officials predicted at least 200,000 votes would be cast in Arkansas.

3 Slain in Pennsylvania
HAZLETON, Pa.—(AP)—Three persons were shot to death and 15 others, including six women, were wounded Monday night when machine gun fire swept a Democratic political parade at Kelayres, a mining village five miles south of here.

The crowd surged toward a brick residence from which marchers said the fire was directed. State police halted the crowd in an effort to keep it from dynamiting the house.

The riot climaxed a year of factional friction in the little town's politics.

Bulletins

WASHINGTON—(P)—Crude petroleum production for the United States in September was reported Tuesday by the Bureau of Mines to be 75 million 316 thousands barrels, compared with 78 million 321 thousand in September last year and 79 million 58 thousand in August this year. The daily average production declined in most states, with Texas the only one showing a material increase.

Brewster Makes Schools' Appeal

Presbyterian Pastor Writes for National Education Week

By the Rev. Thomas H. Brewster
(Written for National Education Week, Nov. 5-11)

This nation's greatest material asset is its children, and if that be true, our children are at the same time our greatest national responsibility.

This was recognized by the Pilgrims who came to New England in 1620, seeking God, when hard by every church they placed a school.

Our own generation has never seen our schools in such desperate straits. Their very condition calls for nation.

We dare not let our schools suffer, for education has always been the basic of American national progress.

As observed above, the nation was founded upon the ideals of the "Little Red Schoolhouse" and it is important that we recognize the right of every child to a grade school education at least. America must successively perpetuate what she so gloriously originated and that is free public education.

During the national education week let us give particular attention to our schools and their problems.

City Managership Move Given Help

Election Expense to Be Deposited With L. R. Commissioners

LITTLE ROCK—Sufficient funds are assured to pay the cost of the city manager election November 27, and the money will be deposited with the election commissioners in ample time, Louis Tarlowksi, attorney for the group which filed the test suit involving the city manager act, said Monday.

The election proclamation is in the hands of the sheriff and the money will be provided in time to have it published in accordance with the law, Mr. Tarlowksi said. Mr. Tarlowksi represented Fred Walton, taxpayer, known to file a petition on the first petition filed with him.

Mr. Tarlowksi said that an active campaign is being planned to familiarize Little Rock voters with the provisions of the city manager law, which the Arkansas Supreme Court held constitutional Monday.

Charles Belmer Dead at Minden

Hope Man Is Being Returned Here Tuesday Night for Burial

Relatives in Hope were advised Tuesday of the sudden death of Charles Belmer which occurred at Minden, La., early Tuesday.

He was stricken shortly after arrival at the Louisiana & Arkansas railway shops, where he was employed. The body will be returned to Hope Tuesday night by train and will be carried to the home of Mrs. Belmer's mother, Mrs. Fred Webb.

Funeral arrangements had not been announced at noon Tuesday.

Football Dance to Be Held on Friday

Nax Towels and his 12-piece negro dance orchestra will play for an Elks dance here Friday night following the Hope-Prescott football game.

Towels' orchestra, which recently finished an engagement in Dallas, comes direct from that city to Hope. The dance will get underway immediately following the football game and is expected to be attended by a large crowd.

2 Filling Stations and Store Held Up on Monday Night

Series of Robberies Overnight Yields $50 and a Pistol

BREAK UP REGISTER

Robbers Force Entrance in Each Case with an Iron Wedge

More than $50 in cash was taken in a series of robberies here Monday night in which two filling stations were looted and a wholesale feed store was entered.

The feed store, operated by D. W. Bailey, West Third street, bore the heaviest loss.

Approximately $40 in cash, mostly half dollars and quarters, was missing from the cash drawer. A check of $169 was not molested. The robbers opened the safe and made away with an old fashioned pistol, a .44 calibre single barrel action.

The Lion Oil station, Third and Elm streets, was entered and approximately $3 in cash was taken. The money was found in a secreted place in the office. The cash drawer was opened, but no damage was done to it.

The Gulf oil station, Third and Shover streets, was entered. The robbers tore up a new cash register, but failed to find any money. A leather sack containing $25 was overlooked.

All three places were entered in a similar manner, the robbers apparently using an iron wedge in springing loose the latches of the windows.

Police were without clues Tuesday.

Hamburg Inquiry Range Increased

Kitchens Supporter Describes "Dirty Work"—Other Counties Report

HAMBURG, Ark.—(P)—Further testimony concerning alleged tabulation of votes in the congressional race between Wade Kitchens and Tilman B. Parks in the Democratic run-off primary August 28, was introduced in Circuit Court Monday.

Kitchens brought suit against Parks contesting the latter's nomination by approximately 300 votes.

The plaintiff introduced 34 witnesses during the day, and depositions from residents of Ouachita, Bradley, Union, Nevada, Lafayette, Columbia, and Hempstead counties were read.

Marcel Bankston, brother of Vernon Bankston, whose law office here was used by members of the County Democratic Committee to tabulate the election returns, testified that he was in the office on Saturday following the primary when E. C. Aiken, secretary of the committee, asked permission to use the office. He said that he was absent from 2 until 5 p. m. that day, and did not know whether the committee men met in his brother's office. However, he added that the office was "borrowed" again the following Monday by Aiken.

Bankston said that he saw Aiken, C. G. Mears, chairman of the committee; McKennon Nobles, a member, and a fourth man whom he did not know, enter the office. A small pasteboard box, in which were some large sheets of paper, was taken into the office, he said. When Aiken began to bring in the ballot boxes, Bankston said he arose to leave.

"Look the damned door; I have a key," Bankston said Aiken told him as he started to leave.

When Bankston said something about the weather being hot, the witness testified that Aiken replied: "A man will get as hot as hell doing crooked work."

Later Aiken was quoted by Bankston as saying:

"Carroll (C. G. Mears) does not know a damned thing about what is going on here and I don't want him to know anything."

Allen J. Linder of Hamburg testified that he was in the courthouse on both Friday and Monday when the committee met. He said he saw Aiken carrying the ballot boxes up the stairs and that he went to Bankston's office and found the door locked. He looked from the street and could not see anyone there he said. On cross-examination he said that if it was a room of a subcommittee which Aiken had, he did not say so. He added that he was interested in seeing Kitchens get the nomination.

Vernon Bankston testified that he did not know that his office was being used until afterward. He said that subsequent to the election he asked Aiken to issue a statement exonerating him from blame and that Aiken said things were "in a mess" and "every man must stand for himself."

Second Payment on Rental Is Due

Nevada Notice to Be Mailed From Prescott—Total Near $119,000

The second Nevada county rental payments on cotton contracts are due at an early date, says J. L. Hiler, county agent.

Notice has been received that 1,666 of the second rental and parity payments checks are to be received in the near future, this number representing approximately half of the number to be received. Individual notice will be mailed to each producer as in the past as to where and when to call for his check.

Farmers should not call for checks at the Prescott office on days scheduled for other points in the county, as all receipt blanks have to be carried with the person delivering the checks.

With the second rental checks, the parity checks, the corn-hog checks, the cattle checks and the option checks, Nevada county is in line to receive some $119,000.

Terracing Service Offered Counties

FERA Project Outlined by Nevada County Agent, J. L. Hiler

County Agent J. L. Hiler announced that there has been a change in the regulations covering the eligibility of farms for the terracing work previously outlined for Nevada county.

The following extracts of a letter received from the state office will explain these changes:

"The Emergency Relief Administration has offered to put on some terracing projects in drought relief counties in co-operation with the Extension Service and the farmers. No submarginal or very marginal land is eligible for terracing. There are four classes of farmers whose land is elig-

Total Is Only 394 at 3 p. m.; Heavy Vote Over State

Combined Boxes in Ward One Show Small Turn-out Mid-Election

PULASKI CO. HEAVY

Capital Area Estimated to Poll Twice Normal General Ballot

Hempstead county voters marched to the polls Tuesday with balloting in the City of Hope rather light for a general election.

Only 394 votes had been cast at the five city boxes up to 3 o'clock when The Star made its final survey.

Voting by boxes:
Ward One (both boxes voting at Arkansas Bank & Trust Co. building): 118.

Ward Two (Frisco station): 77.
Ward Three (556 Service station): 60.
Ward Four (city hall): 39.

County Box (both boxes 5 and 6 voting at Cotton Exchange office, South Walnut street): 100.

The vote in Ward One was particularly light; Ward Two reported about a normal turnout; while in the county box the total of 100 this year compared with 112 about the same hour two years ago.

Big Vote Over State
LITTLE ROCK—(P)—Mid-day reports Tuesday on the balloting in Arkansas' general election indicated a large, if not a record, vote.

The voters went quietly to the polls to consider local and state tickets and a list of referendum measures.

Officials here predicted a vote of 10,000 to 11,000 in Pulaski, which is twice the normal size of a general election vote.

Only Few Cards Still Unreported

"Register Your Baby" Campaign Approaches Conclusion

LITTLE ROCK—While only a few hundred cards remain to be returned to the Bureau of the Census in connection with the first Arkansas "Register Your Baby" campaign, carried on jointly during the last five weeks by the Bureau of Vital Statistics of the State Board of Health, the Federal Bureau of the Census, and the Arkansas Emergency Relief Administration, it is vital that these last few cards be filled out and returned immediately, said Dr. W. B. Grayson, State Health Officer and Director of the Campaign.

Of the great number of cards which were mailed a few weeks ago by the Bureau of the Census to every family in the state, requesting information concerning babies born during the past twelve months, a large percentage of those applications has been returned. These cards, returned to the Bureau of the Census and then forwarded to the Bureau of Vital Statistics in Little Rock, are being used to check against present birth records of the State.

We are very pleased with the percentage of cards returned so far," Dr. Grayson said, "but we shall not be satisfied until all the parents of babies born in the last year have filled out and returned the cards they received."

In the checking process, many births reported are found not to be registered. Letters are sent by W. L. Austin, director of the census, to the parents of these children, and then the letters are in turn answered, the births are registered and the birth certificates mailed to the parents. It is of great importance for the welfare of the children, that all of them receive proper birth registration.

6th Graders Compare History of 1819 Printing With Today's Machinery

Forty-four pupils of the sixth grade of Brookwood school inspected the plant of Hope Star late Tuesday afternoon, guided by their teachers, Miss Louise Owens and Mrs. Henry Haynes.

The sixth-graders had been studying the history of the founding of the Arkansas Gazette by Samuel Woodruff in 1819, and the occasion of their visit to The Star plant was to compare the primitive equipment of that early day with modern newspaper machinery.

The annual American recreation budget amounts to more than $4,000,000,000, according to estimates.

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Scientists Develop Many Uses for Milk

This is the second of a series of articles by Dr. Fishbein on milk, the great advance made in safeguarding for health, its condensation, modification, and food value.

The knowledge that milk contained valuable factors in addition to its protein and fat, such as mineral salts and certain vitamins, brought about new studies. Thus it was found that milk is deficient in vitamin C and vitamin D.

It is, therefore, supplemented by the use of orange juice or tomato juice, which provides vitamin C, and of cod liver oil and similar products, which provide vitamin D.

By this time, however, the experts in nutrition had so fully developed the idea that milk is the most nearly perfect food and that every healthful individual ought to have from one pint to a quart of milk daily, that more and more means were developed for production of milk and for its wider utilization.

Means were developed for condensing milk by removing from it water which constitutes a large part of fresh milk, and putting it into cans for transportation. Before use, water can be added, thus restoring the condensed milk to its original fluid state.

Means were found for getting out the solid constituents of milk by drying and evaporation, using a number of different processes, so that, dried milk, powdered milk, and evaporated milk are now available in addition to fresh milk and condensed milk of various kinds.

To persuade children, some of whom become averse to milk, to take more of this substance, milk modifications were developed by the addition of chocolate and other flavoring materials.

Moreover, the use of cereals to which milk is regularly added and the development of milk and cream soups help to spread more widely the use of this most nearly perfect food substance.

Most recent development in the way of making milk a more nearly perfect food than it already is has been the production of milk which is given the qualities of vitamin D by a number of different processes.

In addition to the production of vitamin D in milk by irradiation, there is the possibility of adding vitamin D directly to the milk in the form of viosterol or irradiated ergosterol.

NEXT: Milk much more complicated substance today; careful study necessary for proper use.

be sure—but what compensations it had! There were open fields under the sun, woodlands where a boy could wander after parting with dog and gun, a warm sea in which a lad made hot and tired by plowing could plunge and be refreshed there were steaming fish chowders, and juicy huckleberry pies, and huge dishes of crushed strawberries and cream in a mixture so thick that a spoon would stand in it.

There were, in fact many creature comforts and wholesome pleasures, mingled with a sense of freedom and a feeling of honest self-sufficiency that would make any life seem good. Mr. Coffin writes of all this with great charm. He presents a delightful picture of Maine seacoast life a generation ago, and makes a book whose reading is sheer pleasure.

Published by Macmillan, it sells for $2.50.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Children Must Learn to Control Tempers.

It is hard to handle the cranky child. One who flies into sudden uncontrolled rages is even a bigger problem than his too-meek brother or sister.

As a matter of fact he is happier in his way than almost any other child living. He gives a pleasant sensation. It is classed among the emotions that give complete satisfaction to the soul.

This does not include the morbid or brooding type. Such children usually have some deep-seated cause for their unhappiness, sometimes imaginary but often real.

The quick-tempered child if different. His nerves explode in one grand smash and then it's all over until the next time. He forgets about it and the sun comes out. He is usually amazed that others lay so much store by his fits.

Habit-Forming Emotion
Quick rage becomes a habit. Any emotional demonstration becomes a habit if the mind likes it. And these minds of ours love relief at any cost. Rage is a relief.

When we are good and mad we can lick the world. We love to get furious and throw our inhibitions to the wind. It feels so good to reach the stage where we can march off to the neighbors and tell them where to get off.

We get a synthetic courage, and, so, to chastity and forbearance and rectitude. We play better golf. We get the dishes done in five minutes—what's the difference about a few chips—if we are so mad at somebody we slam each plate as though it was his head.

The child is no different. In fact, not having judgment or control in himself, he can go as twenty times better.

And right here lies the danger of over-irritation. It is not the thwarted child who is likely to have such brain storms, but the constantly humored one. If concessions are too frequent, he won't learn to stand authority or disappointment. The child who gets his own way always can't stand losing it once.

Heredity May Decide
Children have different dispositions. There can be no dispute about it. Some are regular firebrands. In spite of theorists, I own to a conviction about hereditary tendency along this line.

But this does not say that nothing can be done about it. Another contributory cause to rage is a feeling of insecurity or trouble in the home. Psychologically this has been checked up and proved.

Remove the cause that can and should be corrected from the child's life. That is first. However, if rage is merely self exploitation and sheer nastiness, solitude after each outburst, or during it, is a good idea. Put him to bed and tell him it is too unpleasant to have about spoiling other people's fun. He will find in time that control pays.

Back Up Your Beauty With a Pretty Back

Now that it's time to wear formal evening dresses again, the average woman will want to give extra attention to her back and shoulders. She should plan to spend three extra minutes in her daily bath and, in addition, should decide on some sort of a beauty routine to improve the texture of the skin that shows when she wears a low décolletage.

First, everyone must get back into the habit of using a long-handled bath brush. Not only will it keep the skin on your back scrupulously clean, but will stimulate circulation, eliminating blemishes and rough spots. And use a body lotion every day.

Remember that good health is one of the first requisites of skin beauty. So there are small pimples and of a woman who gets enough exercise, drinks ten glasses of water a day and takes a moderate amount of exercise. It may be a lot of bother to watch your diet, but it's far less trouble in the long run than trying to recondition skin that has become ugly as a result of improper eating.

If you give your skin a little attention each and every day instead of trying to get it in shape half an hour before a formal party, it won't be difficult for you to apply back and shoulder makeup.

Use a liquid powder, put it on as you do your lotion, let it dry and then smooth it down with a large cotton pad. It stays on longer than bath or face powder and—good news—won't rub off on the sleeve of your best beau's dress suit.

The Clew of the Forgotten Murder

By CARLETON KENDRAKE

©1934 NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
WHEN CHARLES MORDEN, reporter for The Blade, is found dead DAN BLEEKER, publisher, employs SIDNEY GRIF, famous criminologist, to solve the murder.

MORDEN had been investigating the affairs of FRANK B. CATHAY, wealthy and prominent. Following the arrest of an important criminal, GRIF questions Cathay and claims to be Cathay and accompanied by a girl called MARY BLOOM.

The day following MORDEN's death Cathay dies of poisoning. GRIF reasons MORDEN had visited the apartment of ALICE LORTON, who has reported the disappearance of her roommate, ESTHER ORDAWAY. GRIF questions Cathay and instructs detectives to shadow her.

GRIF and Bleeker go to the apartment occupied by KENNETH BOONE, friend of Cathay's. Boone denies knowing MORDEN. GRIF moves toward another door of the room and Boone threatens him with a gun.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXIX

DAN BLEEKER's voice was strained and harsh. "Drop that gun," he said, "or I'll make a slave out of you."

Boone hesitated. Bleeker's gun was covering him. Boone's gun was covering the criminologist. GRIF was cool and smiling. Boone was in direct communication with Esther Ordayway, by the check made in his favor and his endorsement on the back of that check.

"Now suppose you people act sensibly and tell us the truth. Why did you kill MORDEN, Esther?" She made a gesture of resignation. There were, however, no tears in her eyes. She stood slim, straight and white-faced.

"I didn't kill him," she said, "but Kenny thinks I killed him." "Aw, Esther," he muttered reproachfully. "Don't interrupt, Kenny," she said. "You keep out of this." She turned to face the criminologist with dry-eyed defiance. "You can believe it or not," she said. "I found MORDEN in my apartment and found him dead. I don't know how he got there. I should have telephoned the police, but I lost my head and telephoned for Kenny instead. He said there was no reason why I should get mixed up in a scandal; that we could leave him there until dark and then dump the body some place."

"SHE can't make her story quite convincing enough until after she's planted a few more alibis, so she gets you, Boone, to go down to Summerville and write a letter to Esther Ordayway to which you sign the name of Robert Chelton and in which you mention Alice Lorton. She thinks the authorities will get that letter and that it may help establish her secondary identity. The weak point in her whole alibi is the bank account that is kept under the name of Esther Ordayway. She tries to clean that account out and get the checks delivered as soon as the account is closed out and balanced. It took a day or two to do that. The fact that a Saturday afternoon and a Sunday intervened enabled us to get the checks when they were ready for delivery."

"That gives us all we need. We can get the bank to identify Esther Ordayway as being this young woman. We can show from her signature that she is. We can identify the letter from Summerville as having been posted by Robert Chelton. The hotel man can identify him. We can show that Kenneth Boone was in direct communication with Esther Ordayway, by the check made in his favor and his endorsement on the back of that check."

"Now suppose you people act sensibly and tell us the truth. Why did you kill MORDEN, Esther?" She made a gesture of resignation. There were, however, no tears in her eyes. She stood slim, straight and white-faced.

"I didn't kill him," she said, "but Kenny thinks I killed him." "Aw, Esther," he muttered reproachfully. "Don't interrupt, Kenny," she said. "You keep out of this." She turned to face the criminologist with dry-eyed defiance. "You can believe it or not," she said. "I found MORDEN in my apartment and found him dead. I don't know how he got there. I should have telephoned the police, but I lost my head and telephoned for Kenny instead. He said there was no reason why I should get mixed up in a scandal; that we could leave him there until dark and then dump the body some place."

"THAT," said the criminologist, "is all right so far as it goes. It doesn't go far enough."

"What do you mean?" "I mean," he said, "that your reason for not telling the police isn't credible. Even Kenneth Boone, who is infatuated with you, didn't believe it. You can't expect us to believe it and you can't expect the police to believe it."

She was silent, white-lipped. "Go on," GRIF said, "tell us the truth."

She shook her head in mute, white-faced negation. "You can question me all you want to," she said, "but you won't make me change my story. That's the only reason that I did what I did. I didn't want the newspaper notice."

GRIF's eyes were staring steadily and appraisingly at her lips as she talked.

Babe Ruth Given Ovation by Japs

American Leaguers Sweep Two-Game Series in Nippon's Capital

TOKIO, Japan.—(AP)—Capacity crowds of 65,000 jammed into Meiji stadium and went wild over Babe Ruth as a group of big league baseball stars from the United States trounced two overcast teams of Japanese all-stars.

The barnstorming Americans trimmed the Nippon all-stars, 5 to 1, Monday after running away with a 17-to-1 affair against the Tokio all-stars in their debut Sunday.

The fans idolized the Babe, although he failed to get a homer in either game, and in turn he was greatly impressed with their courtesy and eagerness to see the runs pile up, even if they were on one side.

Two homers by Earl Averill and one apiece by Lou Gehrig and Jimmie Fox accounted for all of the winners' runs Monday.

Undismayed by the reputations of the American wrecking crew, Date pitched courageously, refusing to be disheartened even when the sluggers' drives fell among the scrambling fans in distant stands.

The Babe singled once, walked once, flied out twice and grounded out once. Both of his flies were deep in to right field and possibly would have been good for homers in the less massive American parks.

His clowning on first base, where he played the last six innings, kept the crowd in an appreciative uproar.

Twenty Grand Coming Back? They Never Come Back

CHICAGO—Talk of the 6-year-old Twenty Grand returning to the races for the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap in Los Angeles in February sounds like a California publicity blurb. Come out from behind that corn cobbler, Dr. Charles Strub! And you, too, Hal Roach! We knew you when.

Twenty Grand! What a name! It came from the price paid for him as a yearling. But it might just as well have come naturally. His dam was Bonus, by imported All Gold, and he chased the pot of gold to the extent of $259,925. His sire was St. Germans. But Twenty Grand coming back? Why, he's a fat, old country gentleman down there on the Greentree Farm at Lexington now.

Another try by him would be comparable to Jack Dempsey lashing himself into battle at 39. You know what that would mean—even against a dub. Athlete and horse are much alike. Legs go first—kerplunk. They can't swap enthusiasm and knowledge for underpinning. If that were possible Jim Corbett would have boxed Max Baer's ears the day Jim died.

Twenty Grand is a tremendous horse. As a 3-year-old, his pins experienced trouble lugging his weight at the speed at which an amateur showman of the tracks traveled.

Twenty Grand broke down late that fall, and bogged down again the following season. The idle rich. Twenty Grand should not have been defeated after his 2-year-old preliminaries.

Accidents and poor condition caused that. Twenty Grand was trimmed twice as a 3-year-old by his once in the President, when an exceptionally bad ride, plus bumping, kept him back. And again, in the Arlington Classic, when he was in such unsatisfactory shape that he should not have been started. Twenty Grand was a pathetic animal that afternoon.

As a patched-up 4-year-old, Twenty Grand was repelled by his stable mate, Mad Frump, when he was so lame that he could hardly finish. In the interim, Twenty Grand has covered a great number of miles in stud, and has grown a thick layer of blubber under his red skin.

To begin with, therefore, if he did start again, his mind would not be on racing. It would take months of work to remove the excess poundage and prepare him. The chances of his ailing props holding up during such a grind would be very slim.

Old Pappy Guys
There have been numerous reports of the 9-year-old Sun Beau, richest money winner in the history of the turf, with $376,744 to his credit, facing the barrier once more.

Although Sun Beau is three years older than Twenty Grand, his challenges the opposition this late in life would be less of an impossibility because the Willis Sharpe Kilmer star always has been as sound as a dollar, and moreover is a lightly constructed thoroughbred.

Kingsford-Smith Flies Over Pacific

Australian Completes Last Leg, From Hawaii to California

OAKLAND, Calif.—(AP)—Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith landed his big monoplane at Oakland Municipal Airport Sunday completing a 2,468-mile flight from Honolulu in 14 hours and 59 minutes.

The flying Australian came in at 7:44 a. m. Central Standard time after fighting through fog banks, ending a three-hop jump from Brisbane, Australia, a distance of 7,365 miles.

Nearly two hours ahead of his schedule, Sir Charles rocketed in at terrific speed, poked his greasy, smudged face out of the cockpit and spoke a grinning apology. "I am sorry to be so early," he remarked, "but you will have to blame my navigator, Capt. P. G. Taylor."

Among the crowd to greet the daring aviator were Harry Lyon and James Warner, who with Charles Ulm flew with Kingsford-Smith from Oakland to Australia in 1928.

Sir Charles, knighted for that daring flight, brushed aside the dangers of the Honolulu-Oakland journey, one of the longest in the world, over which he was the first to fly.

The chief worry of the perilous trip, he said, was the fear that he would arrive before his scheduled time of 9:30 a. m.

The blue and white monoplane, Lady Southern Cross, circled the field once and then landed perfectly at a fast speed. Sir Charles, wearing a blue denim flying suit with a big fur collar, idled the plane up to the welcoming stand.

There were only three city officials to greet him, but some 500 spectators had arrived. Sir Charles rolled back the cowl of the cockpit and out popped his greasy-stained, somewhat weary but grinning face.

"I would like to have a cigarette, a bath and then something to eat," he remarked. Eager hands thrust cigarettes at the aviator, who grinned as the crowd pressed close to the plane.

"I've got the best airplane in the world," Sir Charles boasted.

Crippled Air Liner Is Grounded Safely

Retractable Landing-Gear Jams—Pilot Puts Her Down, However

NEWARK, N. J.—(AP)—The expert hand of Hi Little, veteran pilot at the controls of a giant transport airplane, aloft with its retractable landing gear disabled, Sunday averted a crash that might have brought injury and possibly death to seven passengers and a crew of three.

With the gear locked midway between its normal landing and flying positions and with airport, fire and police officials looking on and fearing a fatal crash, Little brought the big ship to earth at Newark airport without so much as an unusual bump.

The craft, a United Airlines Boeing, took off from the airport at 12 noon bound for Chicago and carrying seven passengers and a crew of Little, Arthur Lybarger of Chicago, co-pilot, and Agnes Pugh, stewardess.

When he reached an altitude of 1,000 feet, Little pulled the lever operating the landing gear, but found the mechanism was faulty, leaving the ship's wheels only half-way up from their landing position.

Then began an hour of excitement, with Little circling over the field and trying to dislodge the locked gear. He was unable to succeed and in radio conversation with his company decided to attempt a landing. Two ambulances, three fire trucks and radio police cars equipped with fire fighting apparatus were summoned and the exact spot of the landing was arranged.

Little swooped downward at the appointed time and cut off his motors the moment the ship touched the ground. The ambulances, fire trucks, and police cars raced alongside the plane for a distance of 300 feet, where the plane halted without damage.

All of the passengers were prining when they alighted. They sloped Little on the back and praised him. Among them was Dr. Arnold Kegel, former Chicago health commissioner. Eighteen minutes after landing at 1:38, the same seven passengers and crew took off for Chicago in another ship.

Stop Chills and Fever!
Rid Your System of Malaria!
Shivering with chills one moment and burning with fever the next—that's one of the effects of Malaria. Unless checked, the disease will do serious harm to your health. Malaria, a blood infection, calls for two things. First, destroying the infection in the blood. Second, building up the blood to overcome the effects of the disease and to fortify against further attack.

Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic supplies both these effects. It contains tasteless quinine, which kills the infection in the blood, and iron, which enriches and builds up the blood. Chills and fever soon stop and you are restored to health and comfort. For half a century, Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic has been sure relief for Malaria. It is just as useful, too, as a general tonic for old and young. Pleasant to take and absolutely harmless. Safe to give children. Get a bottle at any drug store. Now two sizes—50c and $1. The $1 size contains 2½ times as much as the 50c size and gives you 25% more for your money.

If you sit down at set of sun
And count the acts that you have done,
And, counting, find
One self-denying deed, one word
That eased the heart of him that heard,
One glance most kind,
That fell like sunshine where it went—
Then you may count that day well spent.
But if, through all the lifelong day,
You've cheered no heart by yea or nay—
If, thru it all
You've thought done that you can trace
That brought the sunshine to one face—
No act most small
That helped some soul and nothing lost—
Then count that day as worse than lost—Geo. Elliot.

Japs Deny Building Island Fortresses

Declare They Are Keeping Faith on League-Mandated Areas

TOKYO, Japan.—(AP)—A foreign office spokesman Tuesday said: "Suspicions expressed at Geneva that the Pacific islands which Japan is administering under a mandate of the League of Nations are being fortified are groundless." The foreign office spokesman continued: "Japan is observing faithfully the terms of the mandate under which it governs the former German islands in the equatorial Pacific."

Japan Accused
GENEVA, Switzerland.—(AP)—A Japanese diplomat was grilled sharply by League of Nations officials Monday on suspicions that Japan is fortifying former German islands in the Pacific which she holds under League mandate.

Nobuhumi Ito, Japanese minister to Poland, denied that his country was constructing naval bases on any of the Marshall, Caroline, Ladrone or Pelow islands granted to her after the World war.

But the chairman of the League's Mandate Commission, Marquis Theodoli of Italy, told Ito about press reports concerning Japan's alleged refusal to admit foreign warships, including one of the United States, and to admit visitors, including an Anglican bishop. This, he said, created "suspicion."

Naval Maneuvers Cited
Ito said that when Japanese naval maneuvers were held in the Western Pacific and in the vicinity of the mandated islands, it was only natural that visitors should not be welcomed there.

The chairman then asked Ito why Japan had expended in 1933 a total of 800,000 yen for development of four harbors in the islands. Ito replied that Japan wished to enlarge these harbors so as to permit anchorage of larger liners which it wishes to send there.

Chairman Theodoli insisted that it was to Japan's interest to remove suspicions concerning fulfillment of her mandate, and said he believed a more adequate reason should be given for deepening and developing the harbors. His insistence and the wording of the question was taken to mean a reference to rumors that Japan was constructing naval bases.

Wild Confusion
Wild confusion ensued with most of the 600 residents of the mining village crowding the main street.

Sheriff's deputies augmented by a dozen state troopers assisted in carrying the dead and wounded to hospitals and private homes. Scores of the marauders accompanied the wounded for treatment. Others formed a flying wedge and stormed toward the two homes blamed for harboring the snipers. The crowd threatened to dynamite one. The residence threatened was that of Joseph Bruno. Under cover of the noise, witnesses said several automobiles pulled out from the curb and sped off.

L. S. U. Students Must Repay Long

And Loyal Football Fans Will Make It Right With Kingfish

BATON ROUGE, La.—(AP)—Louisiana State University students know now that there is no Santa Claus on the campus.

Their hopes were blasted when Senator Huey P. Long passed along the word that something like 500 of the students would have to pay back money he advanced them in his wealth distribution process to pay their way on the "Kingfish" football specials with him to the Vanderbilt-L. S. U. football game in Nashville.

Turning his pockets inside out, Santa Claus Huey was nearly mobbed as he distributed crisp bills at $7 a head to students fighting to make the trip. Each signed a laundry slip and the deal was made with Long holding the bag of L. O. U.'s.

Hundreds of students and many who were not students besieged Long when it was noised about Baton Rouge that he was "giving away money."

Now the students are paying it back. They have been told that they needn't kid themselves about it being "money off the Christmas tree."

E. N. Jackson, university business manager, said the money would probably all be paid within two months, and that it had been rolling back in at the rate of $40 a day since the game a week ago. About $275 in all has been paid back thus far, he said.

Jackson said Senator Long handed out about $3,500 to the students and that repayments were expected to increase heavily toward the end of the
